THE VIRGINIA SENATORSHIP.

Barbour's Weak Point-His Unpopularity in His Own District. ned in connection with the Virginia set rship, in the event of Democratic suc that state, a reporter of the NATIONAL REPUB-LICIAN has talked with several prominent Dem ocrats in the Alexandria district about his hat siste, a reporter of the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN has talked with several prominent Democrats in the Alexandria district about his chances of winning the prize. Not one of them spoke of Mr. Burbour with anything like enthusiasm, while the majority were willing to searrifice all local pride and select almost any other prominent leader in preference to him. The fact is that Mr. Barbour is less popular in his own district than anywhere else in the state, and if he enters the sematorial contest it as more than probable that he will fall to have the supported him for the Senate once, though they supported him as solid front from his own diafrict would result disastrously at the outset, so he must remedy his weakiness at home or settre from the field. Mr. Barbour's upopoularity across the river is the product of slow and steady growth, and is the product of slow and steady growth, and is aparty due to causes over which he has had no control. At the outset of his political career he was chosen for Congress not as the favorite of the people, but as a compromise candidate—a man to little known in politics to have either warm friends or hitter enamies. When he entered the canvase people were curtous to know what manner of man he was. A visit to the various counties in the district introduced him and leit an unfavorable impression, which has been sail strengthneed by time. In the sime place, he proved to be the poorest political speager the people had ever heard, and po solve the problem of the spirants and pleasing all of them.

The fact that Mr. Barbour resides nearly all the time in Washington is brought up against him, too. He is accused of neglecting Alexandria interests to advance those of the capital, and is generally denounced as an absent representative. All things considered, it is doubtful if any other member of Congress has a slimmer personal following in his district than Mr. Barbour.

Rather Expensive Litigation.

by Mr. N. H. Miller as attorney for the Rosen-berg Manufacturing Company and five other New York creditors of M. F. Eiseman, the clothler, against the latter, which resulted in his store being closed up for some two weeks, the amount of the claims being some $1,000. Messys. Tobriner and Bradley, attorneys for Eiseman, succeeded in quashing the attach-ments and suit was then instituted by Eiseman to recover damages suffered by reason of the attachments. These proceedings have resulted in a compromise, by which the creditors re-lease their claims in full, in consideration of a release of the claim for damages, and orders to that effect have just been filed in the clerk's office of the court.

After she had left the steamer the captain of the Lydian Monarch was asked by a reporter of a New Monarch was asked by a reporter of a New York paper what was his opinion of her con-dition. He said: "I don't preiend to be an in-sanity expert, but I certainly cannot believe that Mrs. Emmons is insane. She impresses me as a kedy of refinement and culture. In fact, she is one of the most interesting women I ever met. She may have shown slight eccentric-ties now and then, but so do many able-minded people."

ties now and then, but so do many able-minded peciple."

On Wednesday night Prof. Emmons called at Wormley's to see his wife, and endeavored to take her away. Mrs. Emmons refused to go with him, and quite a scene occurred. Mrs. Emmons sent for Mr. Henry Whse Garnett and for Mr. Wormley. Soon afterward Mr. Garnett demanded by what authority Prof. Emmons intended to take Mrs. Emmons away. Not being able to satisfy the parties Mal. Moore, chief of police, was called in, and he declined to interfere. All day yesterday Mrs. Emmons was still at Wormley's, and had not been further disturbed by her husband. Mrs. Emmons was still at Wormley's, and had not been further disturbed by her husband. Mrs. Emmons claims that she has been persecuted by the professor. She says that she is tired of if, and intends to stop it for going into the courts and getting her rights. She does not object to being examined by any respoctable medical expert as to her sanity.

Mrs. Emmons yesterday afternoon entered the Western Union telegraph office and spent some time there writing a dozen long telegrams to persons living in New York. She was styliably dressed and her fine appearance attracted attention of those in the office.

FULL DRESS Coats, satin lined, at Barnum's Our Coast Defenses.

BUTTOR NATIONAL REPUBLICAN: I have just read in your issue of the 22d instant a communication from Joseph Nimmo, jr., in regard to the seaceast delenses of San Francisco. Every one will doubtless agree with him in his statements of the defenseless condition of our coasts and harbors and the necessity of immediate action for their protection. But the people may well stand aghest at the encomous amount of mouey which the estimates now declare necessary for the construction and armament of the required fortifications.

Besides, these estimates possess a peculiarity likely to injure their chances of approval by Congress—the peculiarity which causes them to increase from year to year. One does not see clearly where they will atop it this goes on. In 1884 the board of engineers for fortifications, whose report I have now before me, estimated for the complete defense of San Francisco $11, 512, cto. In 1886 the estimates have grown to $27, 808, 500. If Congress should take no action this session we may expect the estimated amount in 1887 to be $50,000,000,000, and so on.

It is true that in this sum of nearly twenty-eight millions there is included nearly eleven millions for the construction of floating batteries—heavily amoved ships, I suppose from the use to which Mr. Nimmo says they will be put)—and the reason assigned for their construction is, says Mr. Nimmo, "that, in the case of San Francisco, it is not possible to place gons in defensive position upon the land far enough from the bity in order to prevent vessels from approaching it within shelling distance." (I use his own words.) This is an assertion the correctness of which I am prepared to deny.

Experts know (whatever may be loosely as served in public) that the extreme range—for effectiveness—that can be expected from the largest guns capable of being carried on board the most formidable of modern ironclads is seven miles, and even that range is doubtful. It is equally well known to those of our experts who have examined into the subject that the bay, harb Editor National Republican: I have just read in your issue of the 22d instant a com-those estimates exclusive of the cost of the floating batteries.

There has been a great deal of loose talk in the papers about the range of the modern breech-loading steel rifles, and, if we were to believe all the stories that are thus to'd us, we might, with reason, come to expect from the Messrs. Krupp a gun which would enable our possible European fees to stay at home and shell us from the opposite shore of the Atlantic! This kind of talk may give the obstructionists and chronic howlers in Congress apparent grounds for opposing appropriations for fortifications, but, sensible as our representatives must be of our urgent need, it will have no effect upon the intelligent majority of both political parties.

Dr. Edwards had saked a blessing, Mr. Janney gave the signal and the little ones commenced to do their part of the pregramme, which was to eat the dinner and coloy it, too. After it was over and all had been satisfed, the children were marched up stairs into the hall. On the stage a large Caristmas tree had been erected, filled with nice presents for the children. After an appropriate address by Mr. Janney, the gifts were distributed, each child receiving a nice box of candy and a pretty present of some kind. During the entertainment the children behaved well, and all went away delighted with the dinner and the beautiful things given them by the good people of Georgetown.

THE MARKETS,

Further Improvement in Stocks-Increased Demand From All Quar-

NEW YORK, Dec. 30,-The stock market again howed further improvement to-day, both in the range of prices and the amount of business done. The foreigners did little or nothing, but an increased demand for stocks developed done. The foreigners did little or nothing, but an increased demand for stocks developed from all quarters. They was good buying for the long account, and the liquidation of short contracts made further progress. The news of the day was entirely favorable, and advices from Washington that the interstate bill was likely to go to the conference committee for amendment, and the failure of the Bank of England directors to advance the rate of discount were both encouraging to the built side. The dividends upon the Vanderbill's declared to-day were somewhat disappointing to large number of people, and thous stocks failed to respond to the general better feeling, being singgish and at times weak. The feature of the day was the southern stocks, all of which were unusually active and strong upon renewed talk of a combination between properties, although nothing definite in regard to the matter was developed. There was especially heavy inside buying in Hichmond and west Point, and it records a phenomenal advance this evening.

Favorable traffic returns induced considerable covering of shorts in New England, which, together with the Gould stocks and coal stocks, was conspicuously strong throughout the day. There was little animation among the grangers, though they were steady to firm. Under the lead of Jersey Central and Richmond and West Point the market advanced materially during the first hour. The rise, except in a few special stocks, halted before noon, and a fractional reaction took place. There was are newal of the buying in the afternoon and further progress toward higher prices was made, although on a somewhat reduced business. Realizations again caused a sanging of prices in the last hour, but the market recovered in
